

BIG DIRIGIBLE "LOST" OVER ICE OF ARCTIC OCEAN

JNO. E. ERWIN
DIED FRIDAY
EVE AT HOMEBeloved Attorney is Victim of Pneumonia; Rites Tuesday

Attorney John E. Erwin, one of Dixon's most prominent and progressive citizens, whose friends were countless in all walks of life, and whose ability as an attorney and counsellor was known far and wide, died at his home, 422 Ottawa avenue, at 5:20 o'clock Friday afternoon after a courageous fight against pneumonia, which his tired heart was unable to carry on.

Funeral services will be held from the late residence Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock and at St. Patrick's Catholic church at 9:30, with Rev. Father Michael Foley officiating at Requiem high mass. Burial will be at Oakwood cemetery.

Throughout the past week the genial whole-hearted attorney's condition had been the source of constant worry on the part of his countless friends and the news of his passing, while not unexpected, brought expressions of sincere sorrow from all who knew and loved him. In scores of ways Mr. Erwin will be greatly missed in this community, in which he spent most of his life and to the development of which he gave liberally of his time, talents, strength and finances.

Was Native of Dixon

John E. Erwin was born at Dixon, Illinois, June 22, 1871, and at the time of his death was 56 years, 11 months and 3 days of age. He graduated with honors from North Dixon high school in 1889, and afterward attended the Dixon Business College. After several years spent in industrial lines, he took up his residence in Chicago and began the study of law. He was associated for nine years with the late attorney William J. Hynes, head of the legal department of the Chicago City Railway Company, a training that enabled him to accomplish great results in the law. During his association with Mr. Hynes he attended the Chicago College of Law, working his way through school as a stenographer. He was admitted to the bar November 19, 1896, and has practiced before all courts including the Supreme Court of the United States, to which he was admitted to practice November 29, 1926. He was also qualified to practice before the courts of the District of Columbia, and practiced for many years in the local courts. He was a noted criminal lawyer, being engaged in a number of very important cases in this district. On July 11, 1927, he formed a partnership with Attorney George C. Dixon, under the firm name of Erwin & Dixon. Previous to his entering the study of law, he was engaged in teaching in the rural schools of Lee County. He was Vice President and one of the original organizers of the Dixon Trust & Savings Bank.

Fraternal Ties

In his lodge affiliations, he held membership in the B. P. O. E. Dixon Lodge No. 779, Modern Woodmen at America, Loyal Order of Moose Lodge No. 727 of which he was a charter member and Fourth Degree Assembly Knights of Columbus. He was a devout member of the Catholic Church, and was also an active member of the Dixon Chamber of Commerce. He took a deep interest in farming interests, being engaged in that line, himself. Mr. Erwin was public-spirited in every way, and eager to see his home city advanced to its proper place among the cities of the state. He was very charitable and always lent a willing hand to those in need, being particularly interested in seeing the youth of the community succeed.

On April 22, 1904, he united in marriage with Julia Brabazon, she having preceded him in death on April 25, 1926. One son, Thomas, survives, beside one sister, Mary A. Erwin, and one brother, George B. Erwin.

Nebraska Bank Robbed

Wymore, Neb., May 26—(AP)—The Farmers & Merchants bank here was robbed by five men today who scooped up all cash and securities in sight and fled in a bright red Nash car, bearing a Douglas county (Oman) Nebraska license number 1-26233. Officers and customers at the bank were forced to lie on the floor face downward while the gang worked. A banker, cashier, had a tussle with one of the bandits when he was slow in getting down, but neither was hurt. The car was last seen outside of town heading in a northwesterly direction. Officials estimated the loss at about $5,000 or more.

NEGRO IS FOUND
ALIVE IN MATHER
MINE LAST NIGHTHad Been Underground
146 Hours: Escape
is Miraculous

Mather, Pa., May 26—(AP)—Entombed for more than six days in the ruins of Mather mine, after an explosion there last Saturday afternoon, John Wade, 38, a Negro coal loader, today was reunited with his wife and three children after having been mourned as dead. He was found sitting in butt 24, north working, about two miles back in the mine, by rescue teams seeking the remaining dead early last night. But 24 is practically half a mile from where the explosion took place.

Seemingly none the worse for his experience, he was taken to an emergency hospital. Physicians said that barring danger of pneumonia, he was physically sound. He said he had wandered about the workings and had lived on contents of miner's food buckets he found in various sections of the mine.

Imprisoned 146 Hours.

How he escaped the deadly after-damp that swept the explosion torn mine was a mystery. Officials in charge of rescue crews are of the opinion Wade luckily followed air currents. He had been underground 146 hours. The disaster took a known toll of 174 lives with several workers unaccounted for. Another miner was rescued alive after being buried inside the mine for six hours. He, Frank Kubicka, brought out Tuesday morning and at that time rescue squads believed no others could possibly have survived.

News of the rescue of Wade spread rapidly through the village. Mrs. Wade rushed to the mine tipple. On receiving confirmation of her husband's escape the "widow" became hysterical with joy.

Mind Not Clear

Wade's only complaint today was that his feet hurt. His mind was not clear as to what happened in the darkened tunnels after the explosion. He had "walked and walked" until so weakened that he was forced to sit down, and in this position he was found by the rescuers. Wade said he knew he would be saved because "I prayed all the time and had faith in God."

Asked by mine officials if he knew of any other living in the workings, Wade said he could not remember. The man was exhausted by his long entombment, and frequently fell asleep while being questioned.

Wade is known in the mining village as deeply religious, and as a constant church member.

Spurred on by the finding of Wade, additional rescue squads today were searching every recess in the mine.

CONGRESS GETTING READY TO ADJOURN
EARLY NEXT WEEK

Nearly All its Major Legislation Has Been Passed

BULLETIN

Washington, May 26—(AP)—A determined fight to prevent adjournment of Congress on Tuesday developed today in the Senate and action on the question was blocked for the day by Senator LaFollette, republican of Wisconsin.

Senator Hiram Johnson of California led off with a vehement protest against any adjournment until enactment of his Boulder Canyon dam bill and other legislation which he said was necessary in the public interest.

When the adjournment resolution was presented by Senator Curtis of Kansas, the Republican leader, LaFollette objected to its consideration and Vice President Dawes ruled that the objection forced action over for the day. It will come up automatically on the next legislative day and a vote without debate will be in order.

Washington, May 26—(AP)—After one of the most strenuous days in legislative history, Congress today was well on the road to adjournment Tuesday.

Except for the threat of a filibuster in the Senate on the Boulder Canyon Dam Bill, which the House passed yesterday without a record vote, and hints of an attempt to get Senate action on the $274,000,000 naval building program, also approved by the House leaders saw nothing in the offing that might hold up passage of the House adjournment resolution.

Meanwhile, the Senate had only two conference reports to approve today before resuming debate on the Boulder Canyon. They were on the $146,000,000 second deficiency and (Continued on page 2)

PHYSICIAN TODAYWas Killed When Called to Dress Wounds of a Desperado

BULLETIN

Denver, Colo., May 26—(AP)—Four men in an automobile said to answer the description of the car in which the Lamar, Colo., bank robbers made their escape, fought a gun battle here this morning with a detective.

The men escaped when the detective became temporarily blinded by bits of glass from the windshield of his car which was shattered by bullets.

The officer fired at the automobile when he discovered it answered in detail the description of the machine used by the robbers at Lamar and the men refused to stop. The four men immediately returned the fire.

Riot squads were immediately sent out to patrol the streets while all available police were assigned to guard highways.

Dighton, Kansas, May 26—(AP)—Roused by the slaying of a physician called to dress the wounds of one of four desperados who Wednesday killed two officials of the machine used by the robbers at Lamar and the men refused to stop. The four men immediately returned the fire.

The physician was lured from his home here Thursday night by a man who said a friend had been injured in a tractor accident. The doctor's body was found by a road about 25 miles south of Oakley. He had been shot in the head and had been dead only a short time when officers reached the scene shortly after noon. His automobile had been pushed over an embankment. A not scrawled on a shoe box cover was found in the car. It said:

"Oh, you murderers—ye—Dr. Sweet revenge Dickon—co—enter—prise."

While officers were unable to link the note with previous developments, it was thought that the wounded robber may have died while undergoing treatment and that Dr. Wineinger was slain when the three desperados resumed their flight without the handicap of caring for their companion. There is a town named Enterprise in Dickinson county, in east central Kansas.

Finding of the physician's body increased fears for the safety of E. A. Kessinger, Assistant Cashier of the First National Bank of Lamar, who was kidnapped after the robbers shot the cashier and president and fled with upwards of $20,000 in cash and Liberty Bonds.

With two airplanes already aiding searchers, a passenger ship, carrying machine guns, was sent from Denver to assure an ample supply of arms and ammunition should the robbers be located. Officers said they did not expect the men would ask or give quarter, if cornered.

Gangster is Shot

Rockford, Ill., May 26—(AP)—Nick Licata, said to be a Chicago gangster was left on the front steps of the Rockford hospital early today with a bullet wound in the chest. Authorities were unable to find anyone who had seen his companions.

NOTHING HEARD FROM ITALIA IN
THIRTY-SIX HOURSFears for Safety of Polar
Explorers in Big Ship Today

BULLETIN

Berlin, May 26—(AP)—Dispatches from Kings Bay to the Berlin press state that the Italia's base ship Citta di Milano has steam up but that a northwesterly gale was piling ice floes from the Arctic ocean into the bay making the vessel's exit to search for the Italia extremely dangerous.

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)
Out of Spitzbergen more than 80 hours, the dirigible Italia at 5 p. m. Spitzbergen time, (11 a. m. Eastern Standard time) was lost in the ice regions, with fears for her safety increasing hourly.

Quick to respond to an Italian request for assistance, the Norwegian government promised every aid.

Road Amundsen, famous Norwegian explorer, was reported in conference with government officials to head a relief expedition.

Last word direct from the Italia, received at Spitzbergen more than 36 hours ago, told of the ship fighting fog and adverse winds, her speed being cut seriously. Today the wind had veered and was blowing from the north.

Fuel Nearly Gone
Spitzbergen advices indicated the Italia would run out of fuel tonight, but Oslo dispatches estimated the fuel would have been exhausted at 4 o'clock this morning.

The Italia could remain in the air under favorable conditions at least two weeks and carried enough food for the sixteen men in the crew for a month, as well as emergency equipment should a landing on the desolate ice cap be necessary.

The belief in Spitzbergen was that the ship was drifting towards the Siberian coast although it was possible she may have drifted past Spitzbergen towards Norway in the fog.

The base ship, Citta di Milano, was preparing to sail tonight to search for the dirigible.

Wireless Kept Busy
The wireless operators of the Citta di Milano continued ceaselessly efforts to get in touch with the Italia, but were unable to make any contact. The airship has a reserve radio with an accumulator which can be used even though the motors are not operating and this fact has served to make the airship's long silence incomprehensible to the crew of the base ship.

Taking into consideration the state of the weather and the continuing winds, strong belief was felt today that the Italia has made for the Siberian coast, finding further efforts to reach Spitzbergen fruitless.

A statement given out by the Pitcairn Company said:

"Pilot Verne E. Treat was forced to remain in Washington on his south bound trip from New York last night, because of fog; but by the time the northbound mail arrived from Atlanta at Richmond, the weather had cleared, and Reid asked to be permitted to take it through to Washington so that Treat could resume his regular run."

"He dropped two flares but was too low for them to light and he was forced to come down with only his landing lights to guide him. He therefore did not see an embankment at the end of the field, and rolled over it while still traveling at high speed."

Reid's death is the second fatality in the ranks of the Pitcairn company which started operation of the new mail routes May 1, the first death being that of Edward P. Morrissey of Harmon, Ill., who was killed when his plane crashed near Richmond on Tuesday morning, and whose funeral was held in Harmon this morning.

Second Fatality
Reid's death is the second fatality in the ranks of the Pitcairn company which started operation of the new mail routes May 1, the first death being that of Edward P. Morrissey of Harmon, Ill., who was killed when his plane crashed near Richmond on Tuesday morning, and whose funeral was held in Harmon this morning.

MOTOR STAGE
TURNED OVER
FRIDAY NIGHTThree Passengers in Big Coach Hurt;
Other Accidents

One of the coast to coast motor coaches belonging to the Yellow Cornhusker Stage Line of Hastings, Neb., which has been operating through this city for the past two weeks, was badly wrecked and several of the passengers injured last evening about 11:15 when the heavy motor coach turned over at the east city limits at the junction of state highway routes 2 and 6. Three of the passengers were cut and bruised to such an extent that they were rushed to the Dixon public hospital where physicians were hurriedly summoned to dress their injuries.

The bus was enroute from Chicago to Lincoln, Neb., carrying ten passengers, most of whom were asleep when the crash occurred. That some of them escaped with their lives is miraculous. The passengers who sustained the worst injuries and were taken to the hospital by the police, were:

Three to Hospital.

William Jerome, 2300 N. Lawndale Ave., Chicago, enroute to Morrison—deep cut across forehead which required several stitches to close. Bruised the body.

Charles King, Independence, Iowa, enroute to his home—deep cut on right leg and slight cuts and bruises about the head.

Harry Lical, Sterling, Col., enroute home—sustained injuries to back and hips. Bruised about the body. Probably worst injured of three passengers.

The big bus was entering the city, driven by C. E. Ginger of Denver, Col., and J. P. Stanley of Chicago, the second driver was asleep as were several of the passengers. Following the mishap, Ginger started to turn the bus around and Stanley taking charge of the situation and removing the wrecked bus from the paving, went to the police station where he explained in detail to Chief J. D. Van Bibber the cause of the accident.

"I was coming down the hill just entering the city when I discovered that my rear wheels were slipping," he said, "it had rained a little, just enough to make the paving slippery. When the wheels started to slide, I was driving slowly, but the wheels gained momentum and I figured that they would slide around and the bus would be headed back up the hill. I applied the emergency brake when I found I could not stop, but the heavy bus after skidding, slid into the curbing and tipped over on its side, striking a telephone pole which was snapped off. I did all that I knew how to prevent an accident, but the wheels started skidding and then slid into the curbing."

Crash Heard for Blocks.

William Jerome of Chicago, enroute to Morrison, was struck by pieces of the heavy plate glass windows on the forehead and a long deep gash was the result. He was also bruised about the body. Charles King of Independence, Iowa, who was returning to his home in that city, was thrown through a window and was found lying back of the wrecked stage. Harry Lical, who was a passenger returning from Chicago to his home in Sterling, Mo., was the worst injured. His back was badly wrenched and this morning the exact extent of his injuries were not ascertained. It was believed that he might have sustained internal injuries. He was unable to walk and police officers carried him to a room at the hospital.

The crash could be heard for blocks and the driver as soon as he had extricated himself from the wreck called for the police and an ambulance. The officers responded and removed the injured persons to the hospital at once and took charge of the heavy traffic at that hour. The remaining passengers who were only shaken up, were removed to local hotels where they spent the night and continued their trips this morning.

One side of the big new stage bus was almost demolished. Swiveling on its side on the ground, the heavy plate glass windows were crushed and the paving covered with broken glass. A door was torn completely off the big car and cushions of unoccupied chairs were thrown through the windows into the street. After being righted, the bus was removed under its own power. A large crowd gathered and many offered assistance in caring for the injured and uninjured passengers, all of whom were badly shaken up.

Nelsonite in Wreck.

Ario Angelo of Nelson had a narrow escape from being seriously injured.

For those whose loved ones overseas, Our glorious host that lies In France, let hosts of living trees gloriously arise;

The quilt, bearing the love-laden labor of many busy fingers, was presented Mrs. Baird by the class in Domestic Science. The quilt which it has taken several years to make, was started several years ago by the Domestic Science class under Miss Burnham's tutelage and was completed this year under Miss Countryman's supervision. Mrs. Baird appreciates very much the lovely gift.

Peggy Joyce About to Acquire Fifth Husband

London, May 26—(AP)—The Evening Standard, declaring that it "is able to announce one of the most interesting romances of the year," adds: "It is an open secret among their friends that Miss Perry Hopkins Joyce, the American actress, is engaged to be married to Count Frederic de Janze. He will be her fifth husband."

Count de Janze was formerly the husband of Miss Alice Silverthorne of Chicago.

Peggy Hopkins Joyce obtained a Paris divorce from Count Costa Morner in February 1926. She was married to him in 1924 at Atlantic City.

In June, 1927 the Paris tribunal granted a divorce to De Janze from Countess De Janze, the former Alice Silverthorne, of Chicago, who some time before had shot Raymond Vincent de Trafford, a young Englishman, in a compartment of the Calais boat express at the Gare du Nord, Paris, and then attempted suicide. The Countess was freed by the courts on the payment of a small fine.

Charming Tea Honors Miss Helen Parker

Last evening Miss Margaret McTague was hostess at a most delightful 5 o'clock tea honoring her friend, Miss Helen Parker, a bride-to-be of the early summer season. At an early June wedding Miss Parker will become the bride of John Heon, a Dixon boy, recently transferred to the Chicago office of the Sandusky Cement Co.

Miss McTague entertained guests for five tables of bridge. Flowers and candles, and favors emphasized the dainty color combination of pink and white. Pink roses, snap dragons and ferns were the flowers employed. A most tempting and appetizing tea was served.

Miss Anna Marie Worthington was awarded the favor for high honors at bridge and Miss Esther Winn received the second favor. Miss Parker was presented a charming guest favor.

The WOMAN'S DAY by ALLENE SUMNER

Parent and child problems have been treated quite fully by the story writers. Both sides. One reads a heart-wringing Fanny Hurst story about the old maid daughter who "never had a chance at her own life" because somebody had to look after mother, and all the rest were married, so who should do it but Jenny? And hardly does one finish the tale of Jenny before one is weeping with Thyra Samter Winslow or Ruth Suckow over the woes of the old people whose home had to be broken up because none of "the children" could "move in" with them.

But I believe that on the whole fiction gives the old folks the "better breaks." Modern viewpoint may say that no child asked to be born, and that no parents have any right to bring children into the world for the mere purpose of slaving for parents, and that if parents know they cannot support themselves they have no business calling forth children to take over the job. (Absurd reasoning, perhaps, but it's used!) Modern viewpoint may say too, that the world belongs to youth—that the old have had their life and freedom and have no right denying the joy of one's "own home" to youth, but fiction continues to say on the whole that it's a shame the way youth hands it to parents.

It is, granted. But parents hand so many "raw deals" to youth that perhaps a voice must occasionally speak up for the two sons' or daughters' viewpoint. Most family troubles are caused by money, especially trouble between parents and their grown children. Parents regard money as it once was. They believe that Eddie who makes $35 a week is rolling in wealth, because back in the days of their own financial struggles $35 a week was a lot of money.

"But surely even older people know what it costs to live nowadays!" is the obvious rejoinder, to which the next obvious answer is that though they realize what the essentials cost they do not realize the increased scope of the essentials, for they keep their own standard the one of a half century ago and can't understand why their children can't do the same. And in clinging to this old standard they are much more extravagant than the children whom they criticize for going to the movies or getting marzels.

One's "own house," for instance, was one taken-for-granted essential by even "common people" a generation ago, and I know many old people insisting today that children keep them in an entire house, much too big for the parents' needs, much too costly to maintain with taxes and coal and general upkeep—in fact, a terrible financial burden for their $35-a-week sons and daughters. Having their own homes is more than these sons and daughters will ever be able to have for themselves, but mother and Dad are maintained at a terrific sacrifice to others in their old 12-room house which could and should be a real investment if made into housekeeping suits or, at least a double house. But mother and Dad are standpatters. Their house shall never be touched, and "the children," wrestling with financial problems in their own homes must maintain a corner piece of property which has been begged for for commercial purposes and on which the taxes are terrific.

The only answer, perhaps, is that adaptability should not and must not be expected of age, and that if everyone gets the same tolerance in old age, it amounts to the same thing. But suppose children who spend all their substance in youth catering to the selfish and unreasonable eccentricities of age have no children to do the same thing for them in their own old age? Or suppose their children learn to be firm by that time, and won't? Crossing too many bridges? Life teaches the necessity of it.

Shepherds' Class Held Picnic Thursday Eve.

The Shepherd's class of Grace Evangelical church held its monthly meeting Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Messner. The meeting opened by all joining in song.

Scripture reading was given by the president and prayer by the pastor, Rev. F. Brandelner.

Two vocal duets were given by Rev. and Mrs. Brandelner and were enjoyed by all, also a violin solo by Raymond Messner.

Mrs. Hartman gave an interesting reading. About twenty-five members answered roll call.

A short business meeting was held after which the hostess served ice cream and cake.

The June meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George LeFevre in Palmyra.

Senior Class Had Dinner at Lowell

The members of the South Side Senior class enjoyed a picnic dinner last evening at Lowell Park Lodge, the members of the losing side in the contest recently held, entertaining the winning side. The contest was for the sale of the High School Annual, the Dixonian, the sides being captained by Robert Caldwell and Clarence Strub. Robert Caldwell's side won out and hence the feast last evening by Mr. Strub and his followers.

It was a beautiful night and the young folks thoroughly enjoyed the beauties of Lowell and the excellent dinner. Members of the faculty, all of whom had been invited, were honored guests and had a delightful time.

Birthday Party Was A Happy Surprise

Mrs. A. L. Livingston for the past few weeks has been enjoying a visit from her mother, Mrs. Delia Spitzer of Lake Mills, Wis. Friday, May 25, was the seventy-seventh birthday anniversary of Mrs. Spitzer, and Mrs. Livingston planned and carried out a very happy surprise for her.

Friday afternoon twenty friends gathered at the Livingston home and spent a few hours most enjoyably with Mrs. Spitzer who was completely and happily surprised. Social chat, the presentation of many pretty gifts to Mrs. Spitzer, with best wishes for her health and happiness, and the serving of a delicious birthday supper completed the delightful occasion.

The History of the Poppy

In France and Belgium, the countries you have heard so much about, the people lived happily, enjoying the freedom of their beautiful country, when one day came vast numbers of German soldiers who laid waste their land. The huge guns of the Germans did not spare anything; homes were wiped out, families separated, and thousands gave their lives. The United States entered into this conflict, sending our boys across to help turn the enemy back that liberty might prevail in the world. As we all know, many of our men were killed or died in service over there, and now lie buried in the soil they helped to save.

In the spring of 1919, after the war, on Flanders Field, where the firing had been terrific, and thousands of our boys had fallen in battle, in the midst of complete devastation, the poppies came up in abundance. The French women tell you today that the poppy is significant of the blood of the boys who fell on Flanders Field. Those who have traveled through France since the war tell us it is peculiarly true that where the battle was the fiercest and the bloodshed the greatest, the poppies to this day grow most profuse.

From this beautiful superstition comes the true message of the poppy—the message from the boys who fell, as expressed most beautifully in Colonel John McCrae's verse:

We Shall Not Sleep
In Flanders Field the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks still bravely singing fly.
Scarce heard amidst the guns below,
We are the dead,
Short days ago we lived, felt dawn,
Saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, and now we lie
In Flanders Fields.

Take up our quarrel with the foe,
To you from falling hands we throw
The torch—be yours to hold it high;
If ye break faith with us who die,
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders Fields.

Because of this close association to the supreme sacrifice made by the boys who fell on Flanders Field, the poppy has become the memorial flower of the American Legion and its auxiliary, the emblem of a faith that is being kept.

With this thought in mind, those who love the poppy are making every effort to protect this beautiful flower from the inroads of commercialism and to teach the public all over the country the history of the flower. The world in general has forgotten the war, and if the poppy will, in the season of Memorial day, make the indifferent public remember the sacrifices which have been made for them by the boys who gave their lives, so that they wear the poppy in reverence and sincerity, and not as a red tag they could not avoid buying—then indeed the first and greatest mission of the poppy sale has been fulfilled.

The American Legion auxiliary at its first national convention held in 1921, adopted the poppy as its memorial flower, and pledged the profits from the sale to go 100 per cent to service and welfare work.

In the poppy sale let this key be effective publicity prior to the sale which will awaken the indifferent and recall to them the debt they owe the boys who fell and the boys who are now in the hospitals, which will make the public want to pay this tribute and which will show the public that the American Legion and its auxiliary have "taken up the torch" and are keeping faith with those who lie in Flanders Field through their service to the living.

Birthday Party Honors Mrs. Bohlken

Nelson—A delightful birthday party was enjoyed by a number of ladies Thursday in honor of Mrs. Charles Kohlken at her home in Nelson. The guests brought well filled baskets and at noon a bountiful picnic dinner was enjoyed. The afternoon was spent socially. Guests present included Mrs. Frank Ortigiesen, Mrs. William Hahn, Mrs. Julie Hill, Mrs. Frank Stanley, Mrs. Chas. Barton and Miss Kate Ortigiesen of Dixon, Mrs. Edward Johnson of Nachusa, and Mrs. Bartholomew of Nelson. The ladies mentioned are all related and at the close of the afternoon they presented Mrs. Bohlken with a lovely table cloth as a remembrance of the happy occasion.

Sugar Grove School Closed on Friday

The Sugar Grove school held a picnic at the closing yesterday, the dinner being served in the school. The picnic was attended by about one hundred students, parents and friends. Miss Catherine Gibson, the teacher, has been engaged to teach again the coming year. Miss Katharine Sheaffer and Leon Hubbs were pupils who were neither absent nor tardy during the entire year. Every-one present Friday had a most enjoyable day.

Short Interviews With Famous Women

The home fires are still burning in flapper hearts in spite of their exaggerated independence and matter-of-factness about love, home and children. In the opinion of Mrs. Charles A. Lindley, editor of The Junior League Magazine.

As editor of this official organ, Mrs. Lindley feels the pulse of the younger women all over the country who will be the social leaders of their respective communities.

"Girls today are astonishingly serious at heart," she said. "Their nonchalant manner and attitude grows out of their abhorrence of sentimentality rather than a lack of feeling. The key to their behavior is summed up in their own phrasing, 'What is all the shooting about?'

But the fact that they hate a fuss over things does not mean that they are indifferent to the home and family things that the women of yesterday stressed so much.

"It is just that the young women of today have a business-like efficiency and matter-of-factness about living. They are practical and not romantic. They insist that their lives be interesting. But I am constantly surprised to find that they are interested also in home things."

"I should say that women's love of home and children has not changed. The method of living merely has."

News About Flowers, Garden Parties, Dinner and Just Folks

Washington, May 26—(AP)—Scarlet geraniums in long white boxes, with trim boxwood trees sitting in between, border the top of the balustrade surmounting the east and west wings of the White House and down near the north front gates where thousands of tourists may see them are beds of white hollyhocks of the fine old kitchen-garden variety.

The rose beds near the President's office are giving up their burden of blossoms, and what with flowers, trees, shrubbery, dogs, cats, Rebecca, the racoon, and all of Mrs. Coolidge's pet birds, there is a domestic atmosphere about the place that may well keep the President and his family quite content there well into June.

rained out on almost every occasion. Wives of Senators and Representatives are constantly dining at the Capitol in the Senate of House restaurant.

Mrs. John B. Henderson, formerly of Missouri had two Ambassadors dining with her Wednesday night when she gave one of her famous vegetarian dinners. The Ambassador of Peru, Dr. Hernan Velarde, and the Ambassador of France, M. Paul Claudel, were there to represent the diplomatic corps. Representative and Mrs. Henry R. Rathbone and Representative Edward E. Denison of Illinois were also in the company as were Mrs. Stephen B. Elkins and Mr. and Mrs. Perry Belmont and others.

Two of the largest weddings of early June in the Capital fall on Saturday, June 2, that of Miss Carolyn Chamberlain, daughter of Major General and Mrs. Chamberlain, of Frederick Moffat Bradley, of Washington, and that of Miss Caroline Thom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Corcoran Thom, to Major Robert Legrow Wach, Air Corps, U. S. A.

The wedding of Miss Chamberlain interests hundreds of service folk in all parts of the country, and will take place at 5 o'clock in quaint old St. John's Episcopal church on Lafayette Square with the Rev. Dr. Robert Johnson officiating.

The wedding of Miss Thom also will have its military air, as Maj. Walsh will be attended by brother officers. The wedding will take place at noon, June 2 in St. Matthew's church, and a wedding breakfast in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thom will follow.

The Potomac river at Washington, bordered on one side by Potomac Park and on the other by the hills of Virginia, offers special advantages for entertaining to those having yachts, and while the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Wilbur have the privilege of using the Sylph, for long the yacht for Presidents and may entertain quite large parties, other boats on the river offer similar advantages.

Mrs. Charles P. Summerville, wife of Maj. Gen. Summerville, U. S. A., Chief of Staff, and other army and navy women entertain on smaller boats.

Both the President and Mrs. Coolidge are fond of the water trips on the Mayflower and it is doubtful if any other President ever enjoyed the yacht as much.

Frame Grid Cards

Chicago, May 26—(AP)—Schedules for 55 Big Ten football games in 1929, which coaches predict will draw a total gate of $4,000,000, were formally accepted at the annual confab of conference mentors last night.

Four games topped the card. They were Chicago at Princeton November 2; Army at Illinois, Nov. 9; Notre Dame at Northwestern, Nov. 23, and Harvard at Michigan, Nov. 9.

Indiana got the worst break of the conference in home games as it is scheduled to play four away from home and only one, Purdue, at Bloomington.

Admits Equality of Women's Mentality

Chicago, May 26—(AP)—A few decades ago no man would have admitted the mental equality of the opposite sex, Prof. William Maddox, President of the Rockford College said today, at a luncheon of college alumnae at the Woman's World Fair.

"Women in college formerly had to prove they had the same brains as men," he said. "Now the college curriculum can be adapted to the real needs of women today and in the world of the future."

Rockford College, the alma mater of Jane Adams, Julia Lathrop, and Katherine Waugh McCullough, presents a modern college girls' room in an exhibit at the fair.

TO PROMOTE AIR MAIL.

Stimulation of use of air mail by reduction of the postage requirements has been undertaken by congress, which has authorized a rate of 5 cents for half an ounce. At that rate 5 cents will carry the ordinary business letter. Even the lovelorn now using the 10-cent special delivery service may be able to take advantage of the speed of the air mail without greater cost.

It is anticipated that the bulk of mail that will be induced by the lower rate will bring substantially the same revenue return as less mail at the higher rate. In the postoffice department as in other lines, experience tables show that low rates increase business.

This innovation largely is experimental, but it is in line of progress. Postal service never has been calculated on the basis of profits, always on the theory that a service is being rendered to the whole people. Frequently betterment of service has been undertaken without taking into consideration the matter of profits further than knowledge that there will be none. All extension of the postal service has been on that theory.

Ten years ago the government began its experiment with air mail. Development has been rapid. If we were to wait until it could be carried with profit, we never would start. Only by gradual development will it reach the standard of other mail service. Use of air mail must become a habit. Prior to its introduction all business was adjusted to mail by rail. There was no actual necessity for air mail.

In order to have these air lines when we want them, we are required to support them when we can do without them. Reduction in the postage rate ought to stimulate business.

CAUSE AND CURE.

Discovering that one in every five marriages goes on the rocks and gets into court the United States children's bureau is seeking a remedy for this state of affairs. More than that, it announces that "it has made exhaustive study of the problems underlying family disruption and is formulating methods of correction."

If the United States children's bureau is capable of formulating methods of correction of conditions that cause family disruption it will be the most important service that ever has been rendered by a bureau of this government.

Let us hope that the bureau does not overstate the case, that it is not overly optimistic regarding its panacea. It arraigns the present divorce and failure-to-support laws, declaring that the courts do not make use of the material they secure, and charging that they are guilty of wastefulness of a sort that would wreck any industrial establishment.

It may be that this indictment is well founded, and if so it is time corrective measures were adopted, but at best all these things are palliatives. A cure for conditions that bring shipwreck to 20 percent of marriages can only be found in character formation and perhaps in making marriage a trifle more difficult, for at least in stopping hasty unions of the unfit.

A rookie policeman in New York heard shots, investigated and caught a gunman. Well, he's a rookie, and it can be overlooked this time.

A Kansas woman was granted a divorce because her husband struck her with one of her own biscuits. The judge decided it was extreme cruelty.

The farmer gets only a dollar a bushel for corn. It seems to be much more profitable to sell it by the quart.

It's an odd thing, but those backing Hoover believe Coolidge can keep cool without being taken in a draft.

We haven't heard much yet, but are expecting to hear from the forces backing Al Smith something about dry rot.

Laughter helps a weak heart, according to a story in a medical magazine. Maybe that's why you see so many old people in Washington, D. C.

A Chicago woman fired at her husband, missed and decided to give him another chance. He ought to take it—just look what Charlie Paddock did in his comeback the other day!

THE TINYMITES
STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

The houseboat slowly moved along, and Clowdy cried, "Let's have a song." "All right," replied the others. "You suggest what we should sing. We'll have some harmony that's real, 'cause that's the way we Tinymites feel." And Clowdy snapped, "Oh, anything, to make our voices ring."

And then the song came, full of glee. "Four sailors brave and bold are we. We're sailing down this winding stream for goodness knows just where. Where'er we land, 'twill be on earth, and any brand new place is worth the time it takes to get there, so we Tinymites do not care."

"The air is fresh; the sky is blue, and we have not a thing to do, but sail our little boat along from morning until night. We only hope that soon we'll be away out on the open sea. Perhaps we'll find an island that's an interesting sight."

And then the bunch heard Clowdy roar, "Oh, look! There is a girl on shore. I think she's trying to call us by the waving of her hand."

And, sure enough, they heard her shout, but just what it was all about the Tinymites didn't know because they couldn't understand.

"She's much too far away, I fear," said Clowdy, "wait till she comes near." The Tinymites slowed their boat down and the small girl yelled, "Yoo, hoo! I have a basket that's a treat. It's filled with tasty things to eat. Your friend, the kindly woodsman, had me bring it down to you."

"Oh, that's what you were yelling for," said Clowdy. "Fine! I'll hop ashore and get the little basket. 'Twill be handy, now and then." They got the basket, safe and sound, and as the small girl turned around, she waved good-bye. The Tinymites were on their way again.

(The Tinymites feed some birds in the next story.)

MARYE and "MOM" Their Letters

BY RUTH DEWEY GROVES

My dear Marye:

I declare you seem to get worse and worse all the time. Perhaps you don't quite realize how your conduct appears to people who live simply and take marriage seriously. But you surely can't believe that Alan wasn't justified in being angry with you for that silly spectacle you arranged in Mr. Michello's studio. It wouldn't have been as bad if you hadn't let everyone know that both of those men were your admirers.

Any woman of my day would have felt herself degraded to have men fighting over her. And such a thing as flaunting their admiration would have been unthinkable. But it serves them right and I hope they're both so disgusted with you that they let you alone.

I suspect, however, that you wanted to punish Norman for his interest in Florence and merely used your friend Pedro to do it. It's too bad, when women can use their wits to play with men and take advantage of them, that chivalry does not permit men to use their best weapon against them.

I heartily recommend wife spanking for the modern generation. Having made three men unhappy you escaped too easily with a mere scolding from your husband. Not one of them would think of plotting against you, as you did against Norman and the other poor victim of your misguided inventiveness.

So why shouldn't they be allowed to use their strength to punish you? If Alan wants my consent to paddle you he can have it.

But I dare say Alan knows you'd find a way to get even, or rather ahead of him. You'd want the last act as well as the last word. I never knew anyone who could find so many reasons for doing things she shouldn't do as you do, Marye. Is that one of without further manufacture for general construction and railroad ties. The remainder is remanufactured, largely into planing mill products such as sash, doors, blinds, siding and ceiling. Tanks and silos and wooden pipe are special uses for which redwood is well fitted on account of its durability. The wood is so durable that fallen trunks that have remained many years on the ground have been sawed and used as lumber.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE

BY AHERNS

Curly grain is common in redwood and as it takes a satiny polish it is eagerly sought by makers of fancy furniture and bric-a-brac.

Redwood grows on the coast of California in a strip from 10 to 30 miles wide and about 500 miles long, extending from about 100 miles below San Francisco to the southern border of Oregon.

A WESTERN GIANT

Because of its ponderous size the western yellow pine was given the botanical name "pinus ponderosa" by David Douglas, young Scotch botanist and explorer who found it growing near the Spokane river in 1826. It was first discovered twenty-two years before by the Lewis and Clark expedition while they were going up the Missouri river.

The most extensive pine forests in the world are those of the yellow pine of the mountainous west. The tree grows in every state west of the Great Plains and also in British Columbia and northern Mexico. It thrives in a variety of soils on slopes, on the tops of ridges and in canyon bottoms.

In the old lake basins of the Sierra slopes the tree reaches the height of 200 feet and more with a trunk diameter up to eight feet. The wood of yellow pine is often so heavy that the logs have to dry a while before they can be floated to the mills.

Western yellow pine varies greatly in quality. A large proportion is soft, light, easily worked and seasoned, stays in place well, and is quite similar to white pine. Often it is heavy, coarse-grained and quite resinous.

Western yellow pine has uses ranging from highly finished products to the coarsest construction. The soft, high-grade lumber is widely used for planing mill products. Large quantities go into sash, doors and blinds which are sold abroad as well as throughout the United States. The more resinous and coarse-grained grades are frequently used for joints, sills, sheathing and studding.

Western yellow pine is an excellent wood for boxes. On the Pacific coast it competes successfully with sugar pine (pinus lambertiana) and western white pine (pinus monticola) as a fruit box material.

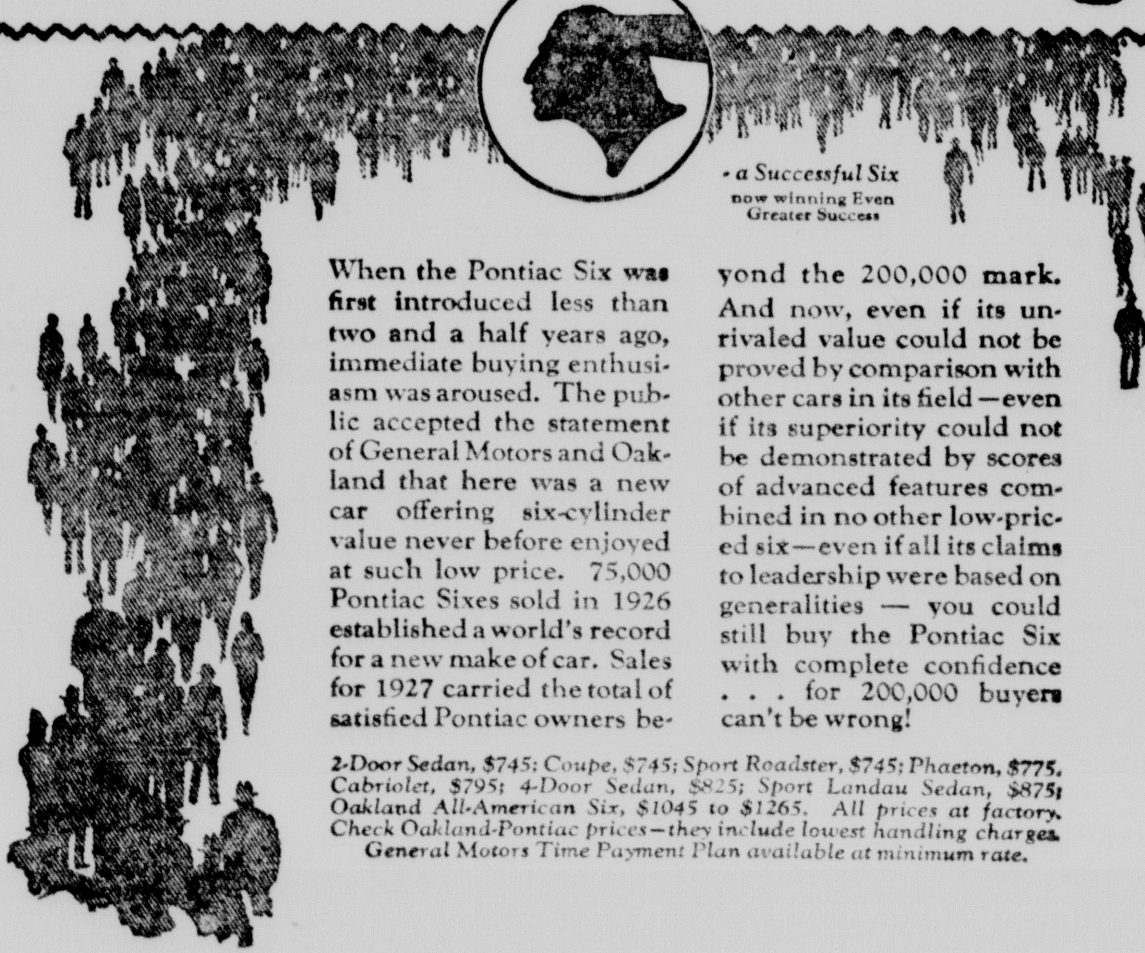

Names given to western yellow pine vary with the locality, there being 29 in all.

NO DEBT CANCELLATION

Bloomington, Ill., May 25—(AP)—Preservation of international peace is the only hope for ultimate payment of the allied war debts, David R. Forgan, Chicago banker, told the district meeting of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce today.

"These debts should not be cancelled," Forgan stated. "The only way they can be paid is by loaning money to debtor nations and thus gradually transferring these debts into debts of states, municipalities and industrial enterprises, absorbed by investors in the United States."

200,000 Buyers Can't Be Wrong

When the Pontiac Six was first introduced less than two and a half years ago, immediate buying enthusiasm was aroused. The public accepted the statement of General Motors and Oakland that here was a new car offering six-cylinder value never before enjoyed at such low price. 75,000 Pontiac Sixes sold in 1926 established a world's record for a new make of car. Sales for 1927 carried the total of satisfied Pontiac owners beyond the 200,000 mark.

And now, even if its unrivaled value could not be proved by comparison with other cars in its field—even if its superiority could not be demonstrated by scores of advanced features combined in no other low-priced six—even if all its claims to leadership were based on generalities—you could still buy the Pontiac Six with complete confidence . . . for 200,000 buyers can't be wrong!

2-Door Sedan, $745; Coupe, $745; Sport Roadster, $745; Phaeton, $775; Cabriolet, $795; 4-Door Sedan, $825; Sport Landau Sedan, $875; Oakland All-American Six, $1045 to $1265. Good Thoughts for Good People

Never once did Jesus falter or fail. Always he proved that "Truth is always the victor." No circumstance can come to us, no problem can be presented to us, no difficulty can assail us, that we cannot go to Jesus' life and find out just how Truth revealed to him the allness of good and the nothingness of evil, and showed him how to prove Truth triumphant.

Christian Science Sentinel. No pleasure is comparable to the standing upon the vantage ground of truth.

Francis Bacon. Do the truth you know, and you shall learn the truth you need to know.

George Macdonald. Truth comes alike to all. Who on Her name dare call, With motives pure; Then let us all unite, With Freedom's star in sight, Press onward in the right Which shall endure.

S. J. Avery. Truth is truth to the end of reckoning.

Shakespeare. Then said Jesus to those Jews which believed on him, If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free.

Listen: The fingers that weaved the rainbow into a scarf and wrapped around the shoulders of the dying storm; the fingers that painted the lily-bell and threw out the planets; the fingers that were dipped in the mighty sea of eternity and shook out on this old planet, making the ocean to drop and the rivers to stream—the same fingers can take hold of these tangled lives and make them whole again, for He came to make the crooked straight, and the rough places plain. The Lord Jesus, who loves you, is mighty to save.

FRANKLIN GROVE NEWS NOTES

Franklin Grove—Wilbur Lyman Morris was born near Franklin Grove, November 24, 1912 and died at his home, May 14, 1928, aged 15 years, 5 months and 20 days. From infancy his health had been somewhat impaired by heart trouble, which finally resulted in his death. He was always cheerful and helpful, willing to do that which his strength would permit. He joined the Church of the Brethren, February 15, 1926 and was a member of the "Star" Sunday school class. He leaves to mourn his death, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Owen Morris; two sisters, Mildred and Edith; four brothers, Ernest, Earl, Clarence and Herman; his grandfather, Lyman Sanford and his great grandmother, Mrs. E. A. Sanford of near Oregon, Ill.; also many other relatives and friends. Funeral services were conducted in the Brethren church Thursday afternoon, with interment in the Franklin cemetery. He is not dead, the child of our affection. But gone into that school, Where he no longer needs our poor protection; But Christ himself doth rule In the great cloister's stillness and seclusion. By guardian angels led; Safe from temptation, safe from sin's pollution He lives, whom we call dead.

Senior Class Play.
A very large audience gathered at the Camp Grounds Tuesday night to witness the Senior Class play, entitled "The End of the Lane." The class has been working hard under the direction of Miss Mildred Smith and their efforts were certainly rewarded Tuesday night in the splendid manner in which they presented the play. Indeed it would be a very difficult thing to say which was the best one, for they one and all did their parts so well that they were all best. It seemed that each one was especially suited for their part. Without a doubt it was one of the best home talent plays ever given here. Much credit is due Miss Smith, one of the high school teachers, who has labored untiringly with the young folks, that the play might be the real success that it was. The orchestra of the high school furnished the music for the evening. Between acts, Misses Pauline Trostle and Lorena Buck favored with several vocal duets. A quintet composed of Glenn Cluts, Lowell Trotter, Carl Sunday, Junior Weigle, and Charles Hunt favored with two songs which were especially well rendered.

Library Open Tuesday.
Owing to Memorial day coming on Wednesday the Public Library will be open Tuesday instead of Wednesday. Remember this and get your book Tuesday.

Miss Evelyn Messer of Ashton was a guest Tuesday night with Miss Esther Hunt and attended the play presented by the senior class.

Bremen Crew Rests
New York, May 24—(AP)—The crew of the trans-Atlantic airplane Bremen came back here today to rest after their triumphal tour, before returning by steamship to Europe on June 9. The three, Baron von Huenefeld, Major James Fitzmaurice and Captain Hermann Koehl, had been feted in a dozen cities of the United States and Canada, while always there pressed upon them the thousands anxious to see and hear the men who braved the westward crossing of the sea.

Their formal tour ended yesterday when they boarded a train at Quebec for New York, by way of Montreal. They reached the Pennsylvania Station this morning shortly after the throngs of commuters had passed through.

The German and Irish fliers, after a day at the Ritz Carlton here, will retire to a quiet spot in the country, unnamed so that their seclusion may be complete. They will remain there until sailing.

On their arrival today they were cheered by several hundred persons, but there was none of the mad surge of enthusiasm such as nearly engulfed them on their first day in New York.

Accuses R. C. A.
Washington, May 24—(AP)—The Federal Trade Commission in a complaint issued today charged the Radio Corporation of America with violations of the Clayton act and the Federal Trade Commission act embodying unlawful restraint of trade and monopolies. The complaint charges that the corporation had sold vacuum tubes to approximately 25 manufacturers of radio sets upon an agreement that they buy their tubes from no other concern. In view of the fact that the patents for the vacuum tubes have expired and are open to the public, the commission charged the corporation with violation of the Clayton act, prohibiting acts that substantially lessen competition and tend to create a monopoly. The commission also charged violation of section five of the Federal Trade act in which unfair methods of competition are declared unlawful.

When A Girl Loves

© 1928 by NEA Service

by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

THIS HAS HAPPENED

VIRGINIA BREWSTER, upon the sudden death of her father after losing his fortune, goes to live with a girlhood friend, CLARRISSA DEAN, and her father, in spite of the objections of her fiancé, NATHANIEL DANN, who distrusts DEAN's motives. Becoming unhappy in her new home, VIRGINIA phones to NIEL's studio late one night and is surprised when his model, CHIRI, answers. This causes a lovers' quarrel which is later mended.

Hoping to get NIEL away, DEAN has a company he controls offer him a high-salaried position in San Francisco. NIEL begs VIRGINIA to marry him and go west, but she refuses to let him sacrifice his art study.

CLARRISSA becomes jealous of VIRGINIA, and the latter decides to leave but DEAN opposes her departure and asks her to marry him. When she refuses, he threatens to expose the fact that her father had cheated him out of $100,000. Recklessly, VIRGINIA promises to enter the money to pay him in one year or marry him if she fails. Then she slips out of his house. She owns a valuable ring for $125 and realizes that she must find a cheap place to live at once.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XVII

VIRGINIA knew in a flash of an unguessed comprehension that she could not tell Nathaniel of her bargain with Frederick Dean. She could not rob him of his peace of mind—destroy his power to create or go on with his work. In all likelihood $100,000 was as far beyond his reach as hers, and if he were told that lack of it would spell unutterable heartbreak for both of them he would be as unhappy and as desperate as she.

And before morning Virginia knew to the fullest just how unhappy, how desperate her situation was. More surely than ever she realized that she must make her fight alone. She might fall beneath the juggernaut of defeat, but until her last hope was dead she would spare Nathaniel the crushing knowledge of what might come.

She arose in the morning steeled with this resolve. And the fear of defeat helped her, too; it drove her on to battle against hopeless odds. By telephone she made an appointment with Mr. Gardiner at his office and when the time came she was there, waiting impatiently in the ante-room. He had suggested coming to her but she had wanted it this way.

"You look too worn to have come out," he reproved her when she had sunk wearily into a deep leather chair by his desk.

"I didn't want to see you at my hotel," Virginia explained. Then, after a pause of startled silence: "I've left Mr. Dean's house," she added simply.

Mr. Gardiner emitted an exclamation of pained surprise.

"But, my dear Miss Brewster," he began in protest. Virginia broke in quickly. "Please don't try to advise me," she begged breathlessly. "Clarissa Dean and I had some trouble and I couldn't stay. I'm at the Ritz now but I'll have to find cheaper quarters. That's why I came to see you. Isn't there any money for me from my father's estate?" she asked at most prayerfully.

Mr. Gardiner shook his regret fully. "Not yet," he told her. "There hasn't been time for a settlement. But I can arrange a personal loan for you," he offered, but not too warmly.

"No, thank you. I will not borrow money until I know how I can pay it back," Virginia refused firmly. "I have two strings of pearls; I can raise money on them."

Gardiner instantly became very grave. "I'm afraid you are going to be disappointed there, my dear," he sympathized. "Those pearls are unpaid for. I had intended advising you to return them to settle the claim as there is no possibility that the estate can pay for them."

A little cry of distress, like the dying wail of a cherished hope, escaped from Virginia's lips and brought a real pang of sorrow for her into Gardiner's deliberately hardened heart.

"But they're all I have," she declared hysterically.

"You must allow me to take care of your affairs," he said decisively. "For surely you realize that Richard Brewster's daughter cannot be permitted to flounder around as though she hadn't a friend in the world. But if you do not prefer to go to any of your friends I shall expect you to come to us. Mrs. Gardiner will be very happy to have you, I am sure."

Virginia heard him through with out a word. Even when he had finished she did not speak at once, and he looked at her inquiringly. She saw an expression of doubt replace his assurance, and she knew that what he saw in her own face was responsible for it.

She tried to smile, but her features might as well have been stone. And her heart felt as set, as unalterable, as her fixed expression of resolution.

"Thank you very much," she said steadily. "I understand and appreciate your kindness, but you see I have made up my mind to accept my changed fortunes at once. It would only delay what I finally must face if I were to try to cling to the past. I'm afraid that Richard Brewster's daughter is now very much like any other penniless girl. She will have to go to work. That may shock my behavior. She had turned and for a second or two she swayed as if about to fall. Mr. Gardiner reached forth to support her but she moved on through the open doorway and then, seeming to gather strength from sheer force of will, she steadied herself and turned to smile reassuringly at him.

"I'll bring the pearls in soon," she called back from the outer door and then closed it quietly behind her.

There was an aching pressure in her head and the floor of the elevator seemed to drop from under her feet and leave her suspended in air as she was carried swiftly to the street level. Other passengers looked at her curiously and she was aware of it but did not care. There was so little to care about except the menace that stood in the way of her marriage to Nathaniel. That alone absorbed her. Other thoughts only nagged disagreeably at a tired mind.

Her only really valuable possessions, the pearls she loved, were not hers. Well, she had feared it might be like that. The shock of having her fears confirmed had passed. She felt dully that it did not matter; it would only hasten her search for work. After all, they wouldn't have helped much toward paying Dean his $100,000. It wouldn't have helped much to accept money from Mr. Gardiner, either. Perhaps there would be nothing at all for her from the estate. She did not want to be in debt, to be owing money on the strength of any hoped-for funds so uncertain as money from that source.

Out on the street she leaned for a moment against a plate glass window and tried to think what it was she had meant to do next.

Get the pearls? Yes, but there was something before that! It eluded her and she let it go. "I've got to find another place to live right away," she told herself. Up and down the street, cars of every description, except commercial, were seeking their tortuous way, and Virginia stood at the curb until a cruising taxi stopped at her signal. She told the driver to take her to the Ritz, but before they turned off Fifth Avenue she remembered what it was she wanted to do first of all. She must get her balance from the bank.

It did not surprise her to learn that her account was overdrawn. She had expected that as she had expected to lose her pearls, but there was no shock attached to this bit of news. Her emotions were chilled, insensitive. In the place where her heart had been there was a lump that pulsed to but one thought. Niel . . . Niel . . .

Well, she had enough money to take a room in a second-rate hotel. She hadn't kept her taxi waiting this time, so she walked. It was not far and she felt the exercise clearing her mind a little. On her way she bought a paper.

From the Ritz she telephoned to several hotels that were advertised in the paper and made a memorandum of their rates.

By the time she had finished packing she had decided upon the one she would go to.

To Virginia, when she was being shown to a room there, it was a depressing revelation of the difference in hotels. To have come to this!

When the bellboy was gone she promptly locked the door. As she turned the key her ears were assailed by voices coming from a connecting room.

"What the hell! Gimme that money or I'll knock you silly!"

Watching the Big Scoreboard

By Associated Press Leased Wire

It appears that the team that can stop the New York Yankees has not yet been assembled.

The Philadelphia Athletics, widely heralded as the only team in the American League capable of giving Huggins' murderous hitters a run for their money, fell twice yesterday before the champions' bats at Philadelphia. The Yankees now hold a three to one edge in the first four engagements of a six-game "crucial" series.

Lou Gehrig's eighth home run of the season with two on the paths in the sixth enabled the champions to turn back Howard Ehmke and the Athletics in the opener, 4 to 2. Herb Pennock, southpaw ace, held the tribe of McGillicuddy to seven scattered hits.

The nightcap was a rout for the Philadelphiaans, who suffered a 9 to 2 beating. Babe Ruth hit his fifteenth and sixteenth home runs of the season while "Jumping Joe" Dugan also smashed out two. Rube Walberg, Eddie Rommel and Daney were pounded for 15 hits, while Waite Hoyt turned in a neat eight-hit performance for the champions. Forty thousand saw the double-bill.

Raffing was supreme in the pinch-outs and the Red Sox blanked the Washington Senators at Boston, 5 to 0. Phil Todd smacked out a home run off Lisenbee.

Four runs in the eighth inning gave the Cleveland Indians an 8 to 4 victory over the St. Louis Browns. George Burns' pinch home run in the seventh tied the score and the Indians continued the assault in the Russell Miller and Vic Aldridge tangled in a hurling duel at the Polo Grounds as the New York Giants eked out a 4 to 3 win over the lowly Phils. Home runs by Mel Ott and Eddie Roush, each with a man on base, sent Miller down to defeat. Each team made but six hits.

Marathoners to End Long Grind Tonight

Passaic, N. J., May 26—(AP)—With the dust of 3,400 miles on their shoes but their faces free of whiskers several weeks old, C. C. Pyle's footsore and dog-tired bunion derbyists shuffle their weary way from Passaic to New York this evening and end their transcontinental footrace with a 20-mile jog in Madison Square Garden tonight.

Of the original company of 200 who started from Los Angeles on March 4 only 55 remain. Somewhere along the 3,000 miles of road lie the wrecked hopes of the rest.

Nothing short of a serious accident can prevent Andrew Payne, Claremore, Okla., youth, from carrying off first prize of $25,000.

With something less than 40 miles to go, Payne leads his nearest competitor, John Salo, Passaic, N. J., by more than 16 hours.

May Good to Babe

New York, May 26—(AP)—The month of May is proving to be one of the most prolific Babe Ruth has ever experienced in all his years of campaigning after bigger and better home run records.

Hitting out two home runs in the second game of yesterday's double header with the Philadelphia Athletics, the mainspring of the Yankees' attack brought his season's total to 16, all but four of which have been hit this month.

His two circuit drives yesterday put him seven games and six days ahead of his schedule last year when he hit 60.

ILLINOIS TEAM IS EXPECTED TO RETAIN HONORS

Conference Athletes Bucked Hard Wind in Preliminaries

Evanston, Ill., May 26—(AP)—With the finishing tape baited with Olympic game opportunity, 89 of the Big Ten's track and field stars centered their final assault on the record books and Western Conference championships at Dyche Stadium today.

Coach Harry Gill's Illinois team, with 21 qualifiers, was expected to defend successfully its conference team championship, with Iowa, Ohio State, Michigan, Northwestern and Wisconsin as chief opponents. The first two places in each event will represent the conference in the coming Olympic track team trials.

Bucking brisk, chilly winds from Lake Michigan, the athletes broke one conference record and equalled two in the preliminaries yesterday. Ketz of Michigan made a new mark for the hammer throw, 160 feet 7 inches.

George Simpson, Ohio State speedster, tied the conference mark for the 220 yard dash, sprinting the distance 21 2-10 seconds.

The wind noticeably affected the other dash stars. Frank Cuhel, Iowa, led the field in the 220 yard low hurdles to finish in 23 3-10 seconds or three-tenths of a second slower than world's record time.

Illinois and Iowa led in placing qualifiers yesterday with 21 men each for the 11 events. Ohio State qualified 16, Michigan 10, and Wisconsin and Northwestern 7 each.

THIRTEEN KIDS ENOUGH, FRAIL MOTHER CLAIMS

Seeks Legal Protection Against "Large Family" Mate

By MARIAN HALE

NEA Service Writer

Bridgeport, Conn.—Mrs. Edith Tomwell believes that thirteen children are enough for any woman to bear.

She has started a legal battle for the right of voluntary motherhood by having her husband arrested for breach of the peace, alleging that he beat her when she argued with him about having more children. She has been married ten years.

Now, to add to her martyrdom, still another child is expected—the fourteenth. Would it, like eight of the others she had brought into the world, die of malnutrition and the other ills of poverty? Desperate, she sought the aid of authorities, but could find no protection other than the petty, technical charge.

"I've lost eight of my 13 children from sickness and being poor," this frail, faded 91-pound woman said, in a lifeless voice.

She Prays For His Death

"My last baby, Arthur, 10 months old now, hasn't any backbone at all. They take care of him at the hospital. Every time I go to him, I just pray they'll tell me he is dead. Harold is 9, but no bigger than a 7-year-old. He had five operations last year on his nose, ears and tonsils and is only skin and bones now. Eddie, 4 years old, has always been peaked. I'm sickly myself."

"I can't make my husband believe we have had enough children. He wants still more."

As she spoke, she sat at the dilapidated table in the low-ceilinged kitchen, making bright blue garters for men's sleeves. Eleanor, Harold and baby Eddie made their little fingers fly helping her string the bits of metal on them. Five pieces of metal to a garter. She strings 2,000 garters for 80 cents to help eke out her $14 a week.

An oil lamp lights the dingy kitchen, where four kinds of thread-bare linoleum piece out a floor covering. The faded wall paper is half off. Outmeal for supper cooks on a broken-down stove for which the children gather chips and coal.

An unhinged cupboard door shows handle-less cups, a few cracked plates. A few dishes stand in the rusted iron sink, with its one faucet for cold water. "Mollie," the bride cat and three kittens lie on the floor.

Beyond a tiny bedroom holds an iron bed, cot and broken down dresser with a cracked mirror and no drawer knobs. The one window looks onto a paved court where drab clothes hang on a line.

City Supplies Milk and Meat

"My husband thinks this is a good home and that I should be satisfied," Mrs. Cromwell said. "He gives me $14 a week and he gets about $20. He's a teamster. My relatives send me clothes. I make them over for the kids. I haven't bought a hat for myself since I was married to my first husband in Brooklyn. He died."

"I try to make the $14 do. I give the children oatmeal and other cereals with canned milk and coffee for breakfast. For dinner I make them soup. Twice a week the city gives me meat and milk because the school reported how underweight Harold is."

"I don't mind working hard. But I mind going without things. But I wish I could keep my husband again. I wish they would keep him locked up."

Alienists to Examine Husband
Cromwell, meanwhile, according to the warden at the North Avenue jail, seems contented playing cards and talking with the other inmates and getting better food than usual. But to his wife he writes pleading letters making extravagant promises.

Edward Cromwell will be examined soon by Dr. Daniel P. Griffin, alienist of the Bridgeport Hygiene Association. Upon the findings his case will be decided.

"If they let him out and he comes home, I don't know what I'll do," Mrs. Cromwell wavered. "I don't believe in this divorce business. But there should be some law to protect a poor mother who loves her children too much to watch them suffer and die."

Presbyterian Board Not Behind Demands

New York, May 25.—(AP)—The demand of the American Consul General at Shanghai for the execution of the slayer of Dr. Walter F. Seymour of the American Presbyterian Hospital at Tsinan, China, was made "without consultation with the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions," says a statement issued by Arthur J. Brown, Secretary of the board.

Dr. Seymour was killed and his body robbed by Chinese soldiers during the fighting south of Tsinan-Fu on April 16. He had attempted to bar the gates of the hospital yard against them.

"It is not for me as a missionary secretary to approve or disapprove the action of the Consul General in Shanghai," says Mr. Brown's statement. "It is enough simply to say that he acted on his own responsibility as a government official whose duty it is to deal with the murder of one of its nationals."

Commenting on a statement in the note of the Consul General that the government reserves the right to demand payment of indemnities, the statement quotes the policy of the board as being "neither to claim nor accept any indemnity for the life of missionaries."

LETTER GOLF

HERE'S GOOD ADVICE
There's a safety hint in today's letter golf puzzle—RIDE SLOW. Par is seven and one solution you may be able to beat is on page 9.

THE RULES
1—The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEN.

2—You can change only one letter at a time.

3—You must have a complete word of common usage, for each pump, slang words and abbreviations don't count.

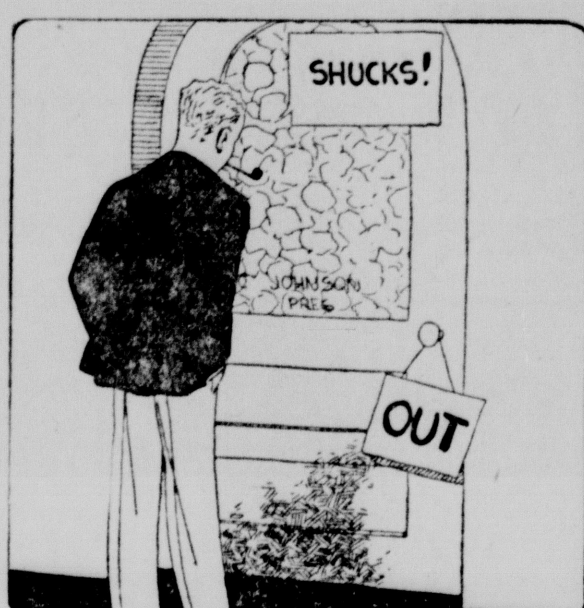

4—The order of letters cannot be changed.

One solution is printed on page 9.

Sufficient for six servings.

A LESSON OF PAIN

Pain is an indication of pressure or irritation of nerves. It is not always felt in the exact area in which the trouble is located, but pain is a positive indication of some disorder.

ABE MARTIN

"I promised t' do ever'thing that's humanly possible t' bring curve back," declared Lile Tharp, Republican cannydate fer assessor, in a speech, last night, after sayin' that our tardy prosperity wuz bein' held back by th' dietin' fad, th' craze t' be spindly. If it's dangerous t' talk t' a motor-man who's movin' along on his own right o' way, how many thousan' times more hazardous is it t' nag a driver?

Pain is supposed to be a warning signal, but the amount of pain is by no means an indication of the severity of the disease. Many simple diseases, like toothache, are accompanied by excruciating agony, while some deadly disease like diabetes, kidney trouble or tuberculosis may reach advanced stages without the sick person being aware that anything is seriously wrong.

The majority of pains occur in the abdomen, back and head. By far the most frequent pains are caused by pressure of gas in the colon and small intestines. This often resembles and has sometimes been diagnosed as organic disease like appendicitis, inflammation of the ovaries, or liver trouble. This gas will sometimes actually cause sufficient pressure as to make congestion in the neighboring organs.

Almost any case of abdominal pain can be relieved by drinking warm water and taking a number of warm enemas. But one should always search out and find the cause which can usually only be ascertained by a careful physical diagnosis.

Tenderness upon pressure is an indication of inflammation. When it is superficial, usually only the surface tissues are involved, but if the internal organs are affected, deep pressure may be needed which, if long continued, will greatly increase the pain.

Hunger pain or pain near the navel or under the heart is generally an indication of gastritis (stomach inflammation). Gas in the stomach produces an uncomfortable feeling but it is hardly possible for one to retain enough to cause pain without belching up the surp us.

Dull pain just below the ribs on the right side at the point nearest the navel may indicate gall bladder trouble. If very sharp, associated with cramping, it may indicate the passage of a gall stone, although I have seen several cases of the latter occurring without the abdominal cramps.

A congested spleen is hard to diagnose, as it is usually associated with a large amount of gas in the splenic flexure of the colon.

Appendicitis pains generally start in the pit of the stomach and shoot down to the right side, just above the pubic bone. If the pain is a little higher, it is probably caused by gas in the caecum (a part of the large colon just above the appendix).

With women, pain in the lowest part of the abdomen is often caused by ovarian, womb, or bladder congestion. Many cases of backache and headache are also produced reflexly from these disorders.

Pain over the eyes indicates eye trouble, sinus inflammation, or constipation.

Pain on the top of the head often indicates uterine or prostatic congestion, or may be caused from bladder inflammation.

Pain at the back of the head usually indicates congestion in the world, or prostate gland.

Pain at the side of the head generally indicates neuralgia.

I am only giving these symptoms because I believe they will be interesting, and not with any intention that you should attempt to diagnose your own condition. Diagnosis of disease is something that should only be attempted by a doctor who has come in contact with a large number of patients afflicted with a great variety of disorders.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION: K. L. M. writes: "I would like to know through your column something about the care of the gums. In two or three places in my mouth where the gums extend downward, there is a noticeable redness, and when brushing them, and often during the day for that matter, they bleed quite a bit. Is there anything that will remedy this condition?"

ANSWER: Cut down the acidity of your stomach by living on the right diet and have your dentist treat your teeth and gums. You are doubtless suffering from pyorrhea or alveolar absorption, and need both local and constitutional treatment.

QUESTION: Mrs. H. R. writes: "My husband does hard manual labor and must carry his lunch to work. Will you be good enough to tell me some suitable combinations through this column, as I know there are others who need this same advice?"

ANSWER: If you can procure the genuine wholewheat bread, make sandwiches of it with fresh butter or peanut butter and lettuce. Provide him with a thermos bottle in which he may carry any of the following cooked vegetables: Spinach, string egg plant, small carrots or beets, beans, asparagus, summer squash, etc. Add one or two of the raw salad vegetables as celery or cucumbers wrapped in a damp cloth, and you have a lunch both appetizing and healthful. Send for the special article on packing lunches; it will offer many helpful suggestions.

QUESTION: Reader writes: "Will you please tell me if peroxide and ammonia will affect the hair if one uses it for bleaching the hair continually?"

ANSWER: There is no way that peroxide or ammonia can affect the hair if they are used on the scalp, but what is the excuse for using them at all? The natural color of the hair cannot be improved by bleaching or dyeing.

QUESTION: Reader writes: "Will you tell me what causes a pain beneath the outer half of the eye? Also what causes black specks to be always present in the vision?"

ANSWER: Your trouble may be caused by improperly fitted glasses, sinus or antrum trouble, abscessed teeth; or, the pain and the symptoms of black spots may be due entirely to liver congestion from auto intoxication.

QUESTION: Cook asks: "Will you please print a list of the salad vegetables?"

ANSWER: Young tender beets, carrots, turnips and parsnips may be ground in their raw state; asparagus, spinach and oyster plant also make good changes if used raw. Then there is lettuce, celery, cucumbers, parsley and watercress. Make it a rule to use one or more of these salad vegetables each day.

QUESTION: Anxious writes: "What will help the fingernails to grow? The ones on my right hand haven't grown enough in several months to file, and those on the left grow very slowly. I have tried everything and I would like to have your opinion."

ANSWER: You must be suffering from severe acidosis if your fingernails grow so slowly. You have probably eaten enough of those foods containing the nail-building elements, but these elements must have been destroyed by some systemic toxemia in your body. Take a few days fruit fast, then live on a well-balanced diet, such as I suggest in my weekly menus, and take calisthenic exercises with your arms to increase the circulation to the hands.
